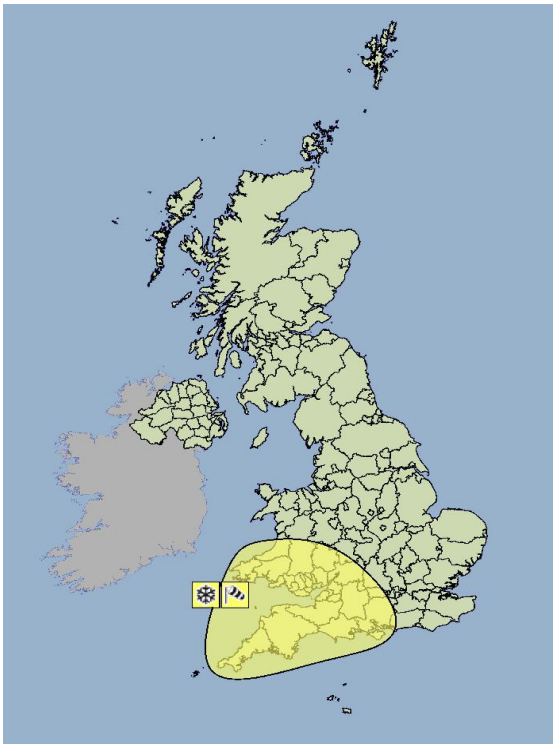
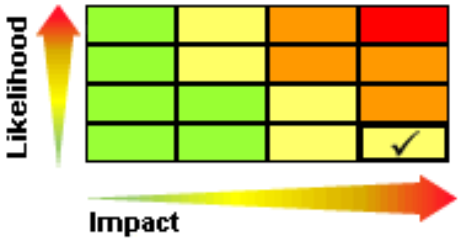
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
A weather system is expected to move slowly north through Thursday into Friday and has potential to produce widespread snow, accompanied by strong to gale force winds. As less cold air follows from the south, there is a small chance of snow turning to freezing rain bringing an additional ice risk. There is still uncertainty in how this system will develop, but there is a small chance of the combined effects of snow, strong winds and ice leading to severe impacts.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Wind and Snow

Valid from 12:00 on Thu, 01st Mar 2018 until 23:55 on Thu, 01st Mar 2018

There is potential for a spell of heavy snow, accompanied by strong winds, to move slowly north through Thursday afternoon and night.

There is a small chance that long delays and cancellations on bus, rail and air travel could occur. There is a slight chance that roads may become blocked by deep snow, with stranded vehicles and passengers. There is a small chance that long interruptions to power supplies and other services such as telephones, may occur.
